A friend for every part of the day

Booker supports learning; Lumi, belonging; Zuri, exploration and nourishment; Bop, movement. Stories lead into conversation, hands-on activities and family practice for ages 2-5.

From classroom to home

The planned platform connects director oversight, teacher work records, parent updates and adult-mediated child activities. Approved character messages and QR routines support real-life habits; no unrestricted child AI.

A program a center can use

Bilingual curriculum, movement and meal planning, training, learning-zone kits, CRM, ATS, store and family support form the service offer for daycares, churches and home programs.

The first proof

One Independence pilot. The public library, brand and curriculum/menu professional reviews are visible. Hosted accounts, security, billing and child work records require operational acceptance before a paid rollout.

Why families return

One consistent character world across stories, daily routines and home activities. Parent-facing progress and care updates are planned to make participation easier and give teachers a useful record.

Ways the business earns

Future center/church subscriptions, family learning, training, implementation, support, merchandise, learning-zone kits, tablet rentals and licensing. None is presented as contracted recurring income.

What investment completes

People, content, the hosted platform, privacy/security, backups, devices, marketing and operating readiness. The $3,139,152.61 base includes reserves; the $1.5M loan leaves a $1,639,152.61 gross gap before receipts.

The standard for launch

Approved English/Spanish content; teacher and parent role testing; child privacy; restore tests; device playback; product safety; verified license, lease, staffing and collections. The 72-month cases currently fail debt coverage.

Next decision: authorize evidence, then release capital.

Verify borrower/IP, license/capacity, lease, payroll, collections, quotes, rights, privacy, security, device tests and signed demand. Approve one episode, two QR clips and a bilingual promo before the season.
